- Brushes: Inexpensive 2" hardware brush and a 1" synthetic flat brush, no need for good brushes
- Brayer, hard rubber one any size
- Acrylic Paint: a handful of colors plus black and white. I use gesso for white, and my most used colors are Golden Quinacridone Nickel Azo Gold, Turquoise (Phthalo), Quinacridone Crimson, in fluid acrylics in 1 oz bottles. Other colors often used are: Cobalt Blue, Green Gold, Yellow Ochre, Hansa Yellow Light, Titan Buff, Pyrrole Orange, Oxide Green, Naphthol Red, Red Oxide and Raw Umber; but feel free to bring YOUR favorites! (Heavy Body paint is okay too.)
- 6 or more large substrates. Your choice: 140 lb. or 300 lb. watercolor paper and/or stretched canvas and/or cradled wood panels. (I will use w/c paper and Cheap Joe's ¾" unprimed cradled panels, usually 24x24)
- 2 small substrates: 8x10 or 10x10, etc. paper, canvas, or board. etc. Gessoed-over paintings are fine.
- Soft lead pencil
- Small travel-size spray bottle (from Target, Walmart, Dollar Store)
- At least one water-soluble colored pencil, I like Intense Pencils by Derwent
- Vine Charcoal: one stick
- Small amount of Rubbing Alcohol for lifting and blooms.
- Xerox copies (not inkjet)-I use black and white images of metaphorical textures, seed pods, flowers, raindrops, cracked asphalt, trees, etc. Email me if you want me to send images you can have copied.
- Alternative papers: If you wish (optional), you can bring a very small amount of printed pages from books, textured rice papers or sewing patterns.
- Adhesive: 16 oz (or larger) of regular gel medium or soft gel, either gloss or matte. This will be used for collage and texture
- Palette: Anything to mix paint on...I've been using newspaper and then using it later for collage material.
- Plastic bag for garbage
- Water container for brushes
- Paper towels
- Scissors
- Hand Protection: latex gloves or barrier cream
- Apron or a smock
- Journal/Notebook: for notes, ideas, drawing, etc.
- Newspapers for paper lifting.

The most important thing to bring is an attitude of play!
